Richard Henriquez

Richard Henriquez is an artist and architect celebrated for buildings that engage in the histories of the sites where they stand. As the founder of Henriquez Partners Architects, notable projects include Sylvia, Eugenia, and Presidio apartments in Vancouver's West End, Sinclair Centre, BC Cancer Research Centre Environmental Science Building at Trent University and Michael Smith Research Labs at UBC.

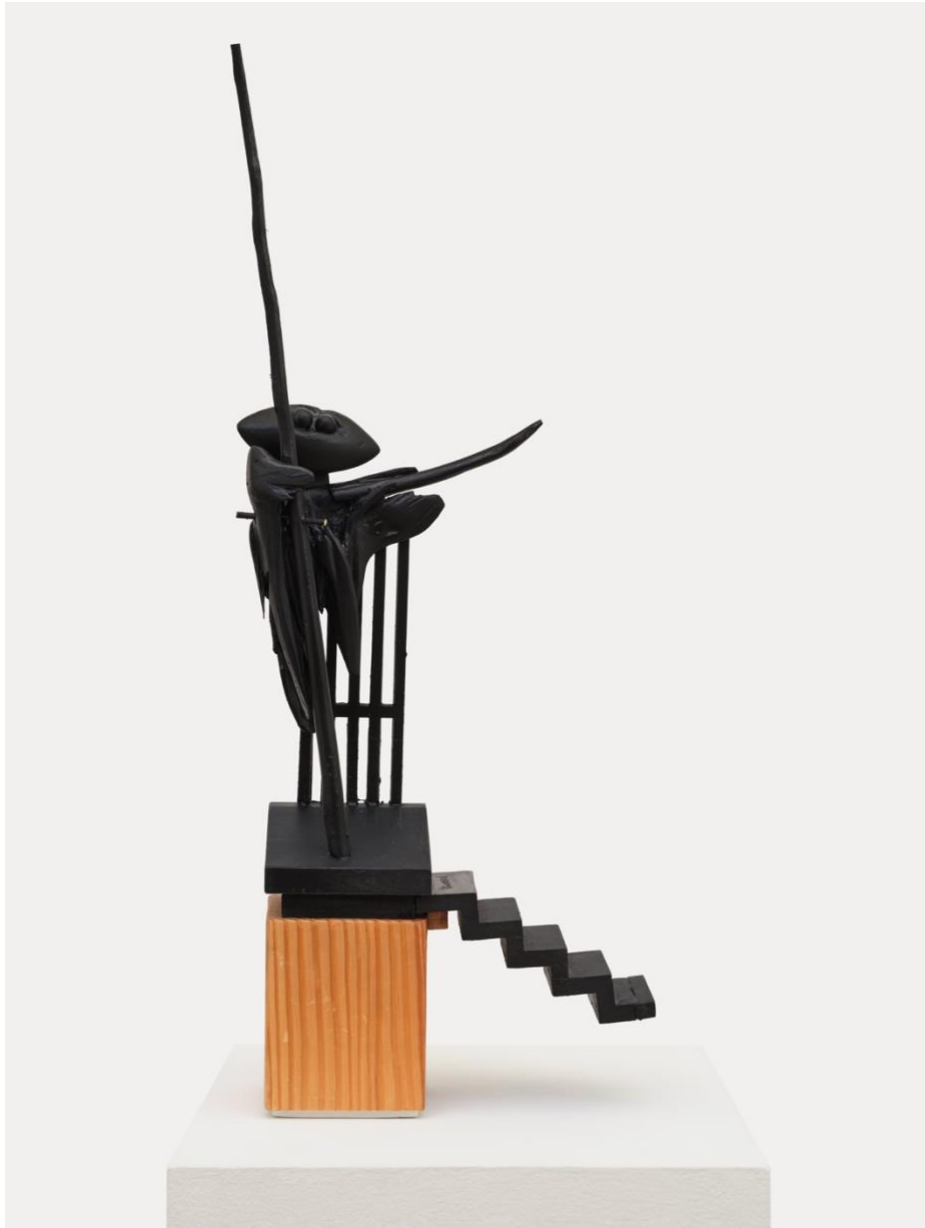

Dream Fragments features a selection from Henriquez's vast series of collages and sculptures. Drawing upon decades of work as an architect, these artworks combine found materials in enigmatic compositions, often suggesting narratives. Many sculptures point outward as if directing one's gaze. The tripod bases reference cameras and surveyor's tools, technologies that help chart architectural histories, including records of buildings that have since been demolished. Whether working on paper or assembling objects into sculptures, Henriquez transforms found materials; some persist as recognizable machine parts, toys, or magazine cutouts, while others become inscrutable. Among these materials are fragments of old buildings found by Henriquez during architectural site visits, acknowledging their place in a cycle of production and deconstruction, not insisting upon permanence.
